This is what I was told during my investigation of the locate markings.

Doug Frank, the neighbor to the north. He stated he saw the flags and paint the day before and stated someone mowed the yard that night and pulled the flags but there was paint. LaDean Moak, a friend of the homeowner stated the paint and flags were there the day before and there was still paint on the ground just not as bright as before it was mowed.

The contractor did state there weren't any paint marks and I advised him it was up to the contractor to maintain the locates and that flags aren't required to be install but we do install flags and that our techs did state you could see the marks just not as well. They did dig up the riser when they dug the wall out along the house so they did know there was a gas line in the area I advised him if they would have called in for a re-spot, we would have had someone on site quickly.

No photos of the original locate exist.
